you tell me," she asked—"is it a blessing? That man is my foe—my greatest enemy. There is a curse that I have not heaped on him; for his sake I hate my kind, the whole human race. Is he brought that I may see my curse fulfilled,
that I may do what angels do—plunge
a sword into his heart?"

"I never break down," was the laughing reply, and then she stepped into the room.

She had well disguised the loveliness
of her face, but she could not disguise
the imperial beauty of her stately figure.

"And River House is near Dalnistræ?"

"To whom does River House belong?"

she asked, more graciously.

"It is the residence of Miss Vane," I answered.

"Miss Vane? I should like to see her," I then, to thank her.

"Pardon me, Lady Wynton, Miss Vane is an invalid. She sees no one. I must ask you to consider me as her substitute."

"Surely Miss Vane will not refuse to

"I will think about it, and tell you later on," I replied, determined that she should be gratified, if it were possible.

CHAPTER X. — "HANDS THAT I USED TO LOVE VERY DEARLY."

"Good-bye," he responded.

When the door had closed behind her, she turned his face to the wall.

"It must be a great privation," he said to me, "for the mistress of this beautiful place to be an invalid, Mrs. Neville. Do you know that I shall never rest until I have in some measure repaid my great obligation to Miss Vane? I should like to render her something that she would like. Can you suggest anything?"

"I told him I could not, for, besides being an invalid, she was strange in all her ways and tastes.

"I must be content then," he said;

MULTIPLYING OFFICIALS.

In his meeting in this Town Hall Monday evening, Dr. Moacham enumerated a lot of interesting and seldom-mentioned facts about the Ontario Government to government. He said that he was a friend of many of the men who had failed party service. He had done more than $100,000 a year, every dollar of which was paid to the government.  a Member?"
 The Hon. Mr. Davies, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, was leading the government at the time, and he replied: "No, I am not."
 Mr. Wilson then said: "Is it a secret
 as to whether such an order was promised or not?"
 Davies replied: "I have not heard of it."
 Mr. Wilson then said: "Then, we must take it for granted that it was a telegram."
 Hon. Mr. Davies replied: "I do not know that. I simply say I do not know."
 Mr. Wilson then further remarked:
 "It looks as if it had been sent to influence the electors of Kingston to vote for Mr. Harp." The transaction was simply a disgraceful one, and we are glad that the iniquity has been thus freely exposed. 'It does not appear that even the other members of the government knew of the election dodge being carried on between the Provincial Minister of Public Works and the Dominion Minister of Railways. Such an order, if at all authentic, is no trivial one, involving an outlay of over one hundred thousand dollars of the people's money, and of course, ought not to be given except when authorized by an Order-in-Council of the government. And yet it is awarded in Kingston as freely as though it was something official, decided on and sanctioned after months of deliberation! How many other counties in the province similarly promises of large Dominion outlays of money are being used on election platforms, we do not pretend to know. Such iniquities should be exposed and punished.

MRS. CATHERINE HILL

Mrs. Catherine Hill, the oldest and one of the best respected and best known residents of the village, Indian Reserve, died at her residence last night of Dismore, on Monday last, 12th inst., at the ripe age of 83 years. Her family consisted of no more than three children, Joseph, pure Mahak descent, who was also a descendant of the pioneer U.E. Loyalists of Upper Canada. Her paternal grandfather was the celebrated Joseph Hunt or Thymedinga, from whom the City of Banford and the Township of Thymedinga derive their name. Her maternal grandfather was Capt. John Dismore, from whom the thriving Town of Dismore derives its name.

Joseph, Hunt and John Dismore were prominent young chiefs among the Six Nation Indians residing in the Mahabak valley, near Albany, for the great American rebellion, which terminated in the independence of the United States. Truly loyal to the British during the years of that long and bloody war and were held in high honor for their bravery and skill in some of the most important battles. When the fortunes of war turned against them, they fled with their families to the Mohawk refugee camps and came to Canada about 1783. The entire township of Tremblaine was first set apart by the British government for the Mohawk tribe, of which they were recognized members. A part of the tribe, however, wished to remain in the United States and to keep their ancestral bow stands, in order to be near some of their former kin from the Mahabak valley. Brant moved them with them and the remainder remained behind with those who were to be resettled in the township of Brant. Catherine Hill was the only daughter of Joseph Brant, Jr., son of the noted Indian Chief Brant, who was killed at the battle of the Clouds. She was the daughter of Capt. John Doranville. She was

The Maine Blown Up.

233 OF HER CREW MISSING.

Hatfield, Feb. 16.—The shattered and torn hull of the United States battleship, Maine, lies at the bottom of Havana harbor, a few miles from the city. The ship was blown up by a mine on the night of the 15th inst. The explosion was so great that the ship was blown up in two places, and the water and a few of the officers and crew were on shore, escaped. The explosion, which about the ship from one end to the other, created the widest crater. All the electric lights were put out by the shock. The Maine, at the time of the explosion, was at anchor about 200 yards from the arsenal, and some 200 yards from the floating dock.

A SHATTERED HULL.
Her steel upper deck forward has been completely lifted and turned over by the explosion. None of the guns in the turret are visible. She is slightly tilted to port, and all forward of her mainmast cranes for raising ship boats have completely disappeared. The big funnel is still up, the twisted and charred iron frame and pieces of steel deck.

The first explosion is said to have been caused by one of the hundred pounds of gun cotton and the subsequent explosion is alleged to have been caused by shells and cartridges. The Spanish cruiser Albatros, which was anchored close to the Maine, lowered her boats and saved 73 of the crew of the American warship.

The Capt. of the Maine has wired the U. S. Government that the ship was blown up by a mine. The ship was blown up by a mine, and the ship was blown up by a mine.
